THE CONTROL OF THE PIERS.

About two weeks ago the Dock Commissioners gave permission to the Old Dominion Steamship Company to occupy a berth at Pier No. 1 North River, while Pier No. 39 was being rebuilt. The harbor-masters objected to the company's occupying a portion of Pier No. 1, when the Dock Coming a portion of Pier No. 1, when the Dock Commissioners addressed a letter to E. G. Tinker, captain of the port, informing him that they had given the Old Dominion Line permission to do so. Yesterday, at the meeting of the Dock Board, a letter was received from the captain of the port, saying that he would pay no attention to their communication, as he does "not recognize the right of the Dock Department to dietate to the captain of the port in this matter, and considering that of the present dock facilities the steamship lines have already more than a fair proportion, he "will use the whole authority of the office in an endeavor to retain for the use of transient shipping such accommodation as it may and does demand." When asked what action the Commissioners would take, they if they would put the letter on file, and did not never the use of Pier No. 1 for the purposes of special commerce, and it was the habor-master's duty only to see that facilities were given to shipping at the piers, and to see that one vessel did not encroach upon the privileges of another.

A representative of the Anchor Line reported that after an investigation of the charges against the company, that from fifty to a hundred straw mattresses were thrown in the bay from each arriving steamsing, they were found to be trac. The company expressed regret that there had been any violation of law, and promised it should not occur again. The Commerciaers will further consider the question of penalty.

The trial of Michael Kavanagh, the sader, for the killing of William Hogan, a fellow seaman, on the killing of William Hogan, a fellow seaman, on the bark Henry S. Sanford, in the lower bay, on September 19, was concluded on Wednesday evening in the Richmond County Court of Oyer and Terminer. The evidence of the two scamen, James Kelly and Henry Jacobson, who were aboard of the Sanford at the time of the allray, went to show that Hogan provoked the assault, and that Kavannagh, in striking him with the capstan-bar, acted in self-defence. The jury was out only a short time, and rendered a verdet of not guilty. Kavannagh was accordingly discharged, and the Court allowed $20 each to the four scamen who had been confined in juil as witnesses. juil as witnesses.

A SUICIDE'S FUNERAL. The funeral of Francis D. Heyward, who committed suicide on Monday night, was held in a strictly private manner at his late residence, No. 17 West Twenty-first-so., yesterday at 2:30 p. m. Only even persons, including the Rev. Mr. Walker, of seven persons, including the Rev. Mr. Walker, of Calvary Church, who officiated, were present, the nearest relative being William Catting, a first cousin. The cofficial was inscribed with the simple words, "Frank D. Heyward. Died October 6, 1879. Azed 28 years," The housekeeper said his age was wrongly stated, he being only twenty-six years old. The body was taken in a closed hearse to Greenwood Cenetery, there to be interred in the family piot. Before the services had begun, a lady, dressed in deep mourning and beiraying great grief, left the house and entered a coupé, which was driven away.

The advance in butter has also been quite strong, though the prices still range lower than at this season last year. Fine creamery butter, which sold early in the season at 16 cents, went up to 30 cents ten days age, but the extreme warm weather this week and high rates of freight have prevented exporters from operating largely, while receipts continue heavy. It is believed that present prices, which are from two to three cents lower on all grades than a week ago, will be sustained, and unless prices are kept within reach of exporters, stocks will accumall the and prices will decline. A PHYSICIAN RUN OVER BY A TRAIN. Dr. Peaugnet, a French physician, who has practised at Fordham for a number of years, after visiting one of his patients at Mount Vernon yesterday, walked along the west side of the down track from Mount Vernon-ave, toward the Harlem Railroad station. The engineer of the train then rapidly approaching blew the whistle to warn Dr. Peaugnet of his danger, but instead of having the desired effect, he became confused and stepped in front of the engine when it was only a few leet benind him. He was knocked down and had both of his legs cut off below the knees. He retained his consciousness, however, and requested that he might be taken to Dr. A. M. Shortly after she left the premises Mrs. Endicott discovered in a closet in the kitchen a quantity of rags saturated with kerosene oil, which had been set on fire, but ob them had died out. The police then arrested the discharged servant, and Justice Taylor committed her under $1,000 had ton, S. L. charged with having attempted to burn

JOSEPH A. BLAIR'S DEFENCE.

POSITION TAKEN BY HIS COUNSEL. ARMSTRONG A TRESPASSER-EXAMINATION OF DR.

BUTLER-THE JURY GOES TO MONTCLAIR. The trial of Joseph A. Blair entered upon its fourth day yesterday in the Court of Oyer and Terminer at Newark. As upon previous days of the trial the court-room was crowded, a large number of ladies being present. Mrs. Blair was present with her two children and Blair's brother. Blair seldom changes his position during the trial. He sleeps poorly and eats little. Sheriff Van Rensseluer says that he has never once seen him smile.

Judge Depue, at the opening of the case, announced that it would be desirable to ascertain whether there were any marks of powder on the clothing of Armstrong, the object being to ascertain at what distance the pistoi was held at the time of the shooting. The Prosecutor said experiments had been made to ascertain the effect on clothing of pistols fired at various distances, from one inch to one foot. Albert Horwitz, of the Shertif's office, was called, and testified to experiments with a pistoi on cloth similar to that of the blouse

Dr. C. W. Butler, of Montelair, was the first witness called for the defence. He testified that he called at Mr. Blair's house, and had Armstrong carried to his room in the barn. He said to Dr. Berry, "Mr. Blair says Armstrong was in this position, reaching for the shelf," Armstrong spoke out, "No, sir, I was not in the room at all, but at the door; he shot me and I roiled over on the bed." Mr. Blair told Dr. Butler that after the first shot Armstrong turned on him, and then he shot again. The witness heard nothing of Armstrong having a pistol. Armstrong's bed was three or four feet from the door. Dr. Butler then stood up and assumed the leaning position that Blair told him Armstrong stood in when he was shot.

The Prosecutor—Did you not say at the inquest that Mr. Blair said he shot Armstrong first at the door, and afterward when reaching for the pistol?

MILLINERY IN ATTRACTIVE DESIGNS. Johnson Bros. & Co. have recently removed from their old quarters at Pourceathest, and University-piace, a few doors west in Fourceathst., and are now in rooms better suited to their trade. Millinery goods and millinery in all its branches are features of this house, and their designs and styles are very attractive. Among the trimmed bonnets at their recent opening was a flaring bennet of garnet plush and garnet velvet. A large roll of velvet was placed around the edge of the brim. A black velvet poke bonnet was trimmed with nodding black feathers and jet eigrettes trimmed with nodding black feathers and jet eigreties together with jet fringe that drooped around the brim.

This house is well known for its handsome fringes and dress trimmings of all kinds, and the variety in these goods is very extensive. Among the hovelites are the embroideries on velves to be used for trimming costumes, the rainbow or cashmere bend embroideries, and tringes combining two or three different styles in one fringe. Jet passementerie and tringes are shown in how designs. The ribbon department is fall of novelties in ribbons, in Persian and Japanese designs and in chameleon ribbons.

COSTUMES AND CLOAKS OF THE FINEST. James A. Hearn & Son moved not long ago from Broadway to No. 30 West Fourteenth-st., where they have a larger store and better facilities. An extensive suit and cloak department on the second floor was the scene of special interest at the Fail epening this week, and many bandsome costumes were exhib ited. Conspicuous among these was a reception dress of Black gros-grain and satin, the front of which was a mass of jet passementerle. The double panier sides were trimmed with passementerle and jet tringe. The sleeves were of peculiar design, having a wide band of closely shirred satin half way between the shoulder and waist. Jet passementerie and let fringe, with network of jet for heading, are used on nearly all of the handsomest black dresses this season, and when used in conjunction with the fine shirring so much in favor at present make elegant costumes. Many handsome cloaks and mantles were shown at this opening.

Anouncements.

HOLMAN Pan and auxiliaries cured me of severe liver, stomach, and nervous troubles, and painful ricematism in my lives and ankles; and my displayed gastric disorder in a few hours, before, which she had not for ten days been able to see a surthing on her stomach.
